CREMATION PROCESS

Cremation is a technical process using heat and flame that reduces human remains to bone fragments. The reduction takes place through heat and evaporation. Cremation shall include the processing, and may include the pulverization, of bone fragments. The human body burns with the casket, container, or other material in the cremation chamber. Some bone fragments are not combustible at the incineration temperature and, as a result, remain in the cremation chamber. During the cremation, the contents of the chamber may be moved to facilitate incineration. The chamber is composed of ceramic or other material, which disintegrates slightly during each cremation, and the product of that disintegration is commingled with the cremated remains. Nearly all of the contents of the cremation chamber, consisting of the cremated remains, disintegrated chamber material, and small amount of the residue from previous cremations are removed together, and crushed, pulverized, or ground to facilitate inurnment or scattering. Some residue remains in the cracks and uneven places of the chamber. Periodically, the accumulation of this residue is removed and interred in a dedicated cemetery property or scattered at sea.

CASKETS/CONTAINERS

The Crematory requires either a casket or an alternative (cremation) container for the cremation. The above named funeral establishment does not offer metal caskets for cremation. All caskets and alternative containers must meet the following standards:

1. Be composed of materials suitable for cremation
2. Be able to be closed to provide a complete covering of human remains
3. Be sufficient for handling with ease
4. Be resistant to leakage or spillage
5. Be able to provide protection for the health and safety of crematory personnel

The crematory is authorized to inspect the casket or alternative container, including opening it, if necessary. In the event there is leakage or damage, the Crematory may contact the funeral home directly for instructions. The crematory reserves the right to open the casket or alternative container to verify the identity of the deceased.

Many caskets that are comprised of combustible materials also contain some exterior parts, e.g., decorative handles or rails that are not combustible and that may cause damage to the cremation equipment. The crematory, at its sole discretion, reserves the right to remove these non combustible materials prior to cremation and to discard them with similar materials from other cremations and other refuse in a non recoverable manner.

Type of casket or cremation container selected:

URNS / TEMPORARY CONTAINERS

After the cremated remains have been processed, they will be placed in the designated urn or container. The Crematory will make a reasonable effort to put all of the cremated remains in the urn or container, with the exception of dust or other residue that may remain of the processing equipment. In the event the urn or other container selected is insufficient to accommodate all of the cremated remains, the excess will be placed in a separate receptacle. The separate receptacle will be kept with the primary and handled according to the disposition instructions on the form. Crematory requires that all urns or containers be a minimum of 200 cubic inches. Unless a suitable urn is provided for the cremated remains, the Crematory will place the cremated remains in a container provided by the Crematory.

Type of Urn Provided, if any:

Are cremated remains to be divided, if so, in what proportions

The Crematory, or authorized agents, is authorized to perform the cremation upon receipt of remains, at its discretion, and according to its own schedule. All cremations are preformed individually.
